

NATIONAL LAWSHOP ON INDIAN COMPETITION LAW-AND-ECONOMICS

Advance

Background

India enacted a new competition law - the Competition Act, 2002 - to replace the Monopolies and Restrictive Trade Practices (MRTP) Act, 1969. The new law partially came into force on May 20, 2009 and has been fully functional since June 2011.

Competition law is an economic piece of legislation and requires an application of legal analysis as well as the methodology of law-and-economics. This Lawshop is being organised under the stewardship of Prof. Rahul Singh through the Institute of Competition Law-and-Economics (ICLE) at the National Law School of India University, Bangalore.

Objectives

The purpose of the Lawshop is:

1. To introduce the participants to the theory and practice of Indian competition law-and-economics.
2. To introduce the participants to the emerging jurisprudence of Indian competition law.
