HYDERABAD

Hyderabad, the golden threshold of Deccan plateau, is the Capital City of Telangana State, the youngest and 29th State of India, with a historical and cultural glory of more than four centuries. Hyderabad covering around 650 Sq. Kms of area is on the banks of Musi river, and is studded on the hilly terrain around artificial lakes, including Hussain Sagar predating the city's founding. The city is bubbling with the hetero-culture, multi-lingual and cosmopolitan culture retaining its traditional grandeur with a population around one crore of all faiths depicting peaceful, happy and fraternal coexistence of love, progress, prosperity and competing with modern scientific, industrial, technological and trade and commerce, jewellery, precious stones and pearls, well developed film industry, apart from world renowned academia. Hyderabad is a replica of mini-India fast transforming into a renowned Universal city. This “City of Pearls” is the second seat of Rashtrapathi Bhavan (President of India's Winter Office).

OBJECTIVE OF THE CONFERENCE

We have traversed from the Stone Age to the Internet age, but the societal status of women still remains subservient. The international as well as national initiatives erased the inequality of women in letters but not in practice. When the laws and policies express the good intentions for sustaining the women equality, the implementation of legal norms should be faithfully carried out, and the social measures testify real respect for women.

The Constitution of India has guaranteed equal right to the women and directed the State to adopt measures for neutralizing the cumulative socio economic, educational and political disadvantages. Ironically, Woman is wailing under the weight of cosmetic rules of equality and she is grilled under the turbulent impact of fabulist traditions and fashions. Women educated or uneducated, employed or unemployed are not extricated from the bondage of slavery or subordination. The ICFAI Law School has taken an opportunity to examine, analyze the latest happenings in the area of women empowerment to stand tall in the society and has taken an initiative to organize this seminar. It essentially, invites the scholarly exposition on the measures to be adopted to eradicate the inequality meted out to the women and suggestions to achieve women empowerment.

The seminar has two-pronged approach: firstly, to enrich the knowledge of the academicians with the latest happenings in the area through interactions and secondly to design a road map with a new dimensional approaches to address the critical issues in the present complex social structure.

THEME OF THE CONFERENCE

The Seminar intends to focus on the emergence of feminist jurisprudence in Contemporary India, and the related issues and challenges. There is a need to create awareness about humane equality for men and women through effective policies and practice. Keeping in view the enormity of the subject matter, the following thematic sub-division is proposed, which may not be considered as restrained sphere but flexible for any genuine cognatic ideas and views.

- Exploring Women Status - Conceptions and Confessions
- Socio-legal Dimensions of Women Protection
- Atrocities against Women - Aberrations of Modern Civil Behavior
- Sex Discrimination - Unfair Social Sickness
- Constitutional and Legislative Measures for Women Empowerment
- Women Victims and Compensation - Novel Contemplations
- Women Health and Medico-legal Complexities
- Tenability of Women Reservations - Confabulations and Controversies
- Role of Women in Modern Economic Development
- Women Entrepreneurship - Challenges
- Information Technology - Women Empowerment
- LGBTQ Rights - Issues and Challenges
