About the Parul Institute of Law

In a rapidly evolving global legal arena, a new and innovative legal thinking is required. With this objective; Parul University has introduced the Institute of Law to promote inter-disciplinary study of law in relation to Management, Arts, and Commerce. It offers 5 years integrated law programs such as BBALLB, BALLB and BComLLB. The Institute also offers One-Year LL.M degree program in Intellectual Property Laws. Parul Institute of Law aims at making law and legal processes efficient instruments of social development.

Concept Note

The seminar under the broad ambit of "Constitutional Challenges in the Era of Globalization" aims to deal with the issues with regard to challenges which are faced in the constitutional frame work while addressing the process of rapid globalization.

Globalization is not just integration of national economies with the global economy but can also be viewed as an multi facet process resulting in exchange of ideas, social and culture practices.

In context of Globalization, it is the need of an hour to address various Constitutional Challenges such as emergence of new rights, contemporary relevance of Directive Principles of State Policy and Governance, sovereignty issue, and issue of Judicial structure to accommodate the changes resultant of globalization. In this context the nations have a lot to learn from each other. There is a direct link between increasing global connect and the laws. These links need to be examined to understand the challenges posed by the changing socio-economic conditions. With increasing cross border trades and investment it is necessary for the governments to indulge in multilateral rulemaking and disputes settlements and redressals. This requires both evolution of Institutional Design as well as evolution of substantive laws. The seminar shall deal with the Constitutional issues and challenges from various perspectives in the context of Globalization and shall also address the same in numerous different ways.
